

If this debate is about local radio, then I ask, "who are you kidding?"The big radio stations have at most 3 or 4 hours a day of local programming, and the rest is national talk or national "playlists"

The idea that clear channel etal is local is about like saying that Washington d.c. is local...

Sat radio is the best thing to come along in a while... for once, I get to pay for what I want to hear, and I am not forced to listen to junk that means nothing to me...

the very fact I pay for it, means that I don't want any regulator "messaging" with it...

In this country, we all have a wright to choose, so let us...

Don't squash XM or any other sat service...

If clear channel etal can't compete, then they should be replaced...

let freedom ring!!!!
